

MICHIGAN AEROSPACE MANUFACTURERS ASSOCIATION

April 7, 2015

Dear MAMA Supporter,

We have been busy in the first quarter of 2015, hosting our Michigan Aerospace OEM Day and would like to thank those MAMA OEMs who were presenting, Enstrom Helicopter and DAC, and our members who also were finding business opportunities and meeting other MAMA members.

We also had the pleasure of hearing and learning from the U of M program and our friends working on the WW2 memorial. It was well attended and we are pleased to hear about economic activity directly associated from the event.

It is going to be a busy second quarter, so please check the website for the calendar of events. Our Aerospace Supplier Development Program, ASDP, is our supply chain program that has taken years to refine and we are pleased to be growing it with the MAMA/Boeing Supplier Day May 12.

We will be making international connections with our attendance at the Paris Air Show in June. Please let us know if you will be attending as we look forward to connecting your organization with those we will be in contact with.

In addition to associating yourself directly with Boeing, we will also be looking to collaborate you with Boeing Tier 1 companies. We are in the process of also working with other major aerospace OEMs to bring them the value of our MAMA members and our supply chain value. These meetings are one of the benefits of membership from our association.

There are many new members in our MAMA association and we encourage you to view their profile on the website and contact them directly.

There are many programs that we are working on, like the MAMA-HELP (Humanitarian Emergency Logistics Project) that is a combined effort with health organizations to deliver medicine, vaccines and medical hardware for the prevention, control and eradication of Ebola in West Africa. Also, we are working with partners in developing specialized manned/unmanned aerial systems as part of our Humanitarian Access Vehicles (HAV).

Please feel free to contact us with any specific need or request and we are proud to represent your organization's aerospace capabilities and advanced supply chain participation."

My Best,
